

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT FINANCIAL ASSURANCE FORM

United States Government Regulations on Financial Ability

The United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) regulations state that any foreign national students coming to the United States for full-time study or transferring from one academic institution to another for the purpose to study must have sufficient funds to meet all anticipated expenses for at least the first year of study.

It is the student's responsibility to present acceptable proof of adequate financial support before requesting the Form I-20 (Certificate of Eligibility) required for issuance of a student visa. Documentary proof of this support must be presented with the I-20 form to the United States Consulate overseas when applying for an entry visa. The immigration officer at the port of entry might request to view your financial statement, as well.

The College of the Redwoods required minimum support is considered sufficient to support a basic student lifestyle. It does not include expenses for travel, vacations or luxury items such as automobiles or computers. A higher standard of living, inflation and emergencies might require that students bring more personal funds than the minimum stated.

The Financial Assurance Form should be accompanied by an official bank document. There must be at least $14,166 U.S. available for the first year. The completed Financial Assurance Form must be signed (on page 2) by Parent or Person Financially Responsible and must be certified by a bank or financial institution.
