Academic dishonesty

In the academic community, the high value placed on truth implies a corresponding intolerance of scholastic dishonesty. In cases involving academic dishonesty, determination of the grade and of the student's status in the course is left primarily to the discretion of the faculty member. In such cases, where the instructor determines that a student has demonstrated academic dishonesty, the student may receive a failing grade for the assignment and/or exam and may be reported to the Chief Student Services Officer or designee. The Student Code of Conduct (AP 5500) is available on the College of the Redwoods website. Additional information about the rights and responsibilities of students, Board policies, and administrative procedures is located in the College Catalog and on the College of the Redwoods website.

Disruptive behavior

Student behavior or speech that disrupts the instructional setting will not be tolerated. Disruptive conduct may include, but is not limited to: unwarranted interruptions; failure to adhere to instructor's directions; vulgar or obscene language; slurs or other forms of intimidation; and physically or verbally abusive behavior. In such cases where the instructor determines that a student has disrupted the educational process, a disruptive student may be temporarily removed from class. In addition, the student may be reported to the Chief Student Services Officer or designee. The Student Code of Conduct (AP 5500) is available on the College of the Redwoods website. Additional information about the rights and responsibilities of students, Board policies, and administrative procedures is located in the College Catalog and on the College of the Redwoods website.

Inclusive Language in the Classroom

College of the Redwoods aspires to create a learning environment in which all people feel comfortable in contributing their perspectives to classroom discussions. It therefore encourages instructors and students to use language that is inclusive and respectful.

College of the Redwoods is a learning community. All of the members of this community are actively involved in the learning process. We can all benefit from this learning experience by adopting the following guidelines for success.

**Learning is an adventure.* Be an active participant in the learning process. Learning will be fun, scary and exhilarating.

**You are responsible for your own education.* Come to class prepared with appropriate materials and preparation to maximize your learning. I am here as a catalyst to stimulate your learning.

**Be an active participant in both large and small group discussions.* We all have life experiences that will help others to learn about children, their families and the early childhood education field. Sharing that information will help your own learning and that of your peers.

Learning takes place best in an atmosphere of collaboration. As a result, communication among all of us is crucial for our learning. Disagreement is welcome if the disagreement is expressed as a differing of ideas rather than a rejection of the person proposing an idea.

**Respect all members of the class.* When class members, the instructor or guests are talking, please give them your full attention. Talking with your neighbor during class is disruptive. Read and follow the "Student Code of Conduct Standards" in the College of the Redwoods catalog. I assume you have agreed to abide by these standards since you are enrolled in classes at CR.

COURSE ASSIGNMENTS

Chapter Outline, Class Notes, Exercises.

15 questions of the day at 10 points each=150 points total

Your active participation in the class is an important part of the learning process for all of us. This includes (but is not limited to) participation in class discussions and activities, involvement in large and small group discussions and activities, regular attendance, prompt arrival to class, attendance throughout the entire class period and behavior which does not distract your peers.

GRADING

Your performance on the above assignments will determine your grade in this class. Assignments should demonstrate your knowledge of course content and your ability to expand the theoretical knowledge you gain in class with the practical knowledge you gain from your field observation. All assignments should reflect critical thought.
