Academic dishonesty

In the academic community, the high value placed on truth implies a corresponding intolerance of academic dishonesty. In cases involving academic dishonesty, determination of the grade and the student's status in the course is left primarily to the faculty member's discretion. In such cases, where the instructor determines that a student has demonstrated academic dishonesty, the student may receive a failing grade for the assignment or exam, or a report may be sent to the Chief Student Services Officer or designee. The Student Code of Conduct (AP 5500) is available on the College of the Redwoods website. Additional information about the rights and responsibilities of students, Board policies, and administrative procedures is located in the College Catalog and on the College of the Redwoods website.

Disruptive behavior

Student behavior or speech that disrupts the instructional setting will not be tolerated. Disruptive conduct may include but is not limited to: unwarranted interruptions; failure to adhere to instructor's directions; vulgar or obscene language; slurs or other forms of intimidation; and physically or verbally abusive behavior. In such cases where the instructor determines that a student has disrupted the educational process, a disruptive student may be temporarily removed from class. In addition, the student may be reported to the Chief Student Services Officer or designee. The Student Code of Conduct (AP 5500) is available on the College of the Redwoods website. Additional information about the rights and responsibilities of students, Board policies, and administrative procedures is located in the College Catalog and on the College of the Redwoods website.

Attendance, Participation Expectations, and Extra Credit:

Attendance: Coming to class every day is highly recommended. If you miss class, your classmates (not me!) are your best resources for missed information- I cannot reproduce an hour-long lecture or discussion during a quick office meeting.

Participation Expectations: One of the primary goals for this class is to create an academic environment to engage with others in the many exciting stories woven throughout US history. To that end, it is not only essential that we respect each other but that we create an environment in which we all can learn. This means:

- Don't be rude.
- Arrive prepared—complete readings BEFORE class.

Extra Credit: Students can earn a total of 100 total points from Extra Credit Assignments (extra credit points on tests, quizzes, and other assignments do NOT count towards this 100-point limit).

1: Week One Text Message (10 points): Text me by Sunday at midnight on week one of class for 10 points. Text your name, your class (History 9), and what pizza topping is your favorite these days.

2: Attend Office Hours (20 points): Attend virtual office hours for 10 min or longer BEFORE SPRING BREAK.

3: Attend a campus or community event (points vary): Announced in class.

4: Bonus Assignments: Independent field trips, movie reviews, & other extra credit opportunities announced throughout the semester.

Course Framework & Critical Engagement

This course adopts a decolonial framework to recognize the persistent legacies of hierarchies of difference evidenced both in discourses of thought and in the material conditions of the histories that we study. This course invites you to think critically about historical archives and evidence and to consider the role of American narratives in historical processes thoughtfully. We will also be conversing with one another using intellectually appropriate methods, including the intentional practice of acts of re-humanization and culturally affirming analysis that centers communities impacted by injustice and inequality. The grading approach for this course evaluates the strength of the evidence for your perspectives and intellectually appropriate engagement to express multiple, sometimes oppositional, viewpoints.

Antiracist Approach

We will talk in-depth about institutional (and other forms of) racism in this class. There is a zero-tolerance class policy against discriminatory or hateful words. It is not uncommon for discussions about injustice and inequality to cause harm to those whose families have been directly impacted. Therefore, we will not debate the merit of processes that result in the premature death of any group of people. Read more about this approach here

Gender-Inclusive Language

This course aspires to be a learning environment where all people feel comfortable contributing their perspectives to class discussions. It, therefore, encourages instructors and students to use language that is gender-inclusive and non-sexist to affirm and respect how people describe, express, and experience their gender. Just as sexist language excludes women's experiences, non-gender-inclusive language excludes the experiences of individuals whose identities may not fit the gender binary. Gender-inclusive/non-sexist language acknowledges people of any gender and recognizes the difference between biological sex and gender expression.

Cheating/Plagiarism

Because academic ethics and honesty are crucial to exploring ideas both in the academy and in the broader world, we expect CR students to maintain the highest academic integrity. For assignments turned in via Canvas, College of the Redwoods uses the Turnitin plagiarism detection software.

Spring 2022 History 9 Schedule

- Read (and take notes) for all required readings BEFORE class
- Closely examine (read/look at/take notes about) all resources, not just those in print. Don't forget to take notes when you watch video content!
- ALL Assignments are Due at MIDNIGHT (most due dates are on Fridays).
- Assigned Resources are Available in the Modules (on the course Canvas Page)

How Much Time Should You Spend on Class Each Week? For most students, 10 hours per week is adequate for History 9 work which includes readings, videos, taking notes, doing assignments, studying, etc. You should adjust this estimate for your learning style. If you are consistently spending more than 15 hours a week on History 9, please seek help. Accessing the support offered at CR is the key to success for a large majority of scholars and is included in your tuition fees.
