Catalog Description

An introduction to the interdisciplinary field of Native American Studies, exploring the complexity and diversity of the Indigenous Peoples of the lands now called North America, with an emphasis on the lands now called the United States. It is centered on perspectives from Native North American Indigenous People and their Nations directly, gaining further insight from ‘Western’ academic fields such as the bio-physical sciences, humanities, social sciences, and critical social theory, such as the study of race, power, and class. Connecting Indigenous traditions with the work Indigenous Nations have and continue to do across the past, present, and future will be emphasized, especially around resistance and resilience, decolonization, environmental management, and sovereignty-building.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. Explain the interdisciplinary nature of Native American Studies and identify its major component parts.
2. Identify historical, economic, political, and social situations influencing Native American life.
3. Identify Native Americans as inheritors of multiple and complex cultures rather than as one homogeneous ethnic or ‘racial’ group.

Accessibility

College of the Redwoods is committed to making reasonable accommodations for qualified students with disabilities. If you have a disability or believe you might benefit from disability-related services and accommodations, please contact your instructor or Disability Services and Programs for Students (DSPS). Students may make requests for alternative media by contacting DSPS based on their campus location:

- Eureka: 707-476-4280, student services building, 1st floor
- Del Norte: 707-465-2324, main building near library
- Klamath-Trinity: 530-625-4821 Ext 103

If you are taking online classes DSPS will email approved accommodations for distance education classes to your instructor. In the case of face-to-face instruction, please present your written accommodation request to your instructor at least one week before the needed accommodation so that necessary arrangements can be made. Last minute arrangements or post-test adjustments usually cannot be accommodated.

Course Objectives

1. Learn to listen to Indigenous People. Develop recognition of their multiple and varied perspectives--enabling discussion of the diversity, complexity, and adaptability of Indigenous Nations over time.
2. Identify and discuss Indigenous Peoples' and Nations' connection to geographic place and bio-physical landscapes and their accumulation of expertise and experience in managing ecosystems.
3. Analyze and debate the changing social construction and diffusion of narratives about Indigenous Peoples, Euro-Americans, events in the lands now called North America. Understand the role of re-framing narratives as agents of change
4. Identify, analyze, and debate the role of race and power (as well as class, gender, environment, and other intersections in social and environmental justice) in structuring societies and landscapes, and how Indigenous Peoples have and continue to help push towards a more just social structure and more sustainable environmental management.
5. Understand and discuss the long and continued forms of resistance, resilience, and resurgence of Indigenous Peoples from 1492 to the present.
6. Identify, analyze, and debate the ethical actions of students of Indigenous cultures in the past and present and the importance of ethical responsibility in working with Indigenous communities and individuals, and on their traditional territories.

REQUIRED: CONFIRM YOUR ENROLLMENT TO THE CLASS

It is required you confirm your enrollment in the class. You do this by posting to the ‘Confirm Your Enrollment’ forum found in the Discussions section of the class Canvas site. (All sections of the Canvas class site are found on the left side of the web page). In your post, it would be great if you said a bit about yourself, so that I and your classmates can better understand you and your perspectives. I have found that including your ethnicity or mix of ethnicities (as most of us have) improves the quality of discussion. But all that is required to put in your post is your name, and that you have committed to this class.

You must post no later than January 28th. Doing so will confirm your enrollment in the course and will ensure you are not dropped as a ‘no show’. January 28th is the last day to drop a class and still receive a refund of tuition and avoid a W (Withdrawal) on your transcript.

REQUIRED READINGS

We will be using two sets of readings for this course:

- 1) First Peoples: A Documentary Survey of American Indian History, 6TH EDITION (2018) by Collin Calloway; and
- 2) Various articles and readings I have selected (free digital copies—links to them will be within each Weekly Module).

The Calloway book is for sale at the CR bookstore. It is unfortunately expensive, but it is an outstanding piece of work. The bookstore may have it to rent. Since I will be using this book for future semesters, you should be able to sell it back to the bookstore at the end of the semester. It is also available on Amazon to either purchase or rent. You can buy it used on Amazon—(and sell it used on Amazon at the end of the semester). Renting on Amazon is probably the cheapest way to go. Make sure it is the 6th edition.

The library has recently purchased some eBooks for textbook reserve, and First Peoples is one of them. This eBook can be ‘checked out’ to one user at a time. Students off-campus will need to enter their WebAdvisor ID and 8-digit birth date to access. Please remember to close out the eBook when they are finished so other students can use it. Here’s the link:

<https://ebookcentral.proquest.com/lib/redwoods-ebooks/detail.action?docID=6642248>

<https://redwoods.libguides.com/OER-list>

Also, there are two physical copies available for 2-hour check out in the Eureka campus library during their open hours.

You are not required to print the articles out—but you certainly can if you want. EOPS students are provided with unlimited free printing—contact the EOPS office for more information.

OVERVIEW OF ASSIGNMENTS

1) Weekly Modules. To be posted on Modules page of the class Canvas site. You will have two weeks from the date a Weekly Module is posted. The due date will be in the title of the Weekly Module. Each Weekly Module will contain four assignments:

- Reading or readings
- Position paragraph about the reading(s)
- Video or videos
- Comment to a discussion forum about the video(s).

Further details about each of these four elements are on a following page.

2) Miscellaneous Modules. To be posted on Modules page of the class Canvas site. These will be occasional posts of important information that does not fit within the Weekly Modules. The Miscellaneous Modules are short videos, readings, or website pages. Read or watch the material and then post a comment of at least one sentence in the associated Discussion. Like your Weekly Modules, you will have two weeks from the date a Miscellaneous Module is posted. The due date will be in the title of the Miscellaneous Module.

3) Research paper topic. Submitted for my approval and feedback. To submit, you can choose between: EITHER talking to me about the topic OR submitting a few sentences describing the topic to the ‘Research Paper Topic’ module in the Modules section of class Canvas site. This is a required assignment, but not graded. Details and suggestions of topics will be available in the ‘Research Paper Topic’ module.

3) Oral history assignment (Written essay—not a spoken presentation). Minimum 2 pages, double-spaced. Further instructions will be in the ‘Oral History Assignment’ module in the Modules section of class Canvas site. This is an essay about an interview you will have with a person of your choice on a topic of your choice. The person does not need to be Native nor does the subject need to be about Indigenous Peoples. This assignment is about understanding the value of oral knowledge and oral history. Remember to ask the person you are interviewing if they want anonymity.

4) Final research paper. Minimum 10 pages, double-spaced, on a topic of your choice. Title pages and bibliographies do NOT count towards the 10-page minimum. Personal experiences are welcome topics. This paper should serve you and your interests. Full details (formatting, citations, and other instructions) as well as samples of top papers from previous semesters will be available in the ‘Final Research Paper’ module in the Modules section of class Canvas site.

Please note: The instructor reserves the right to make changes to the content and format of the assignments, with sufficient notice to students.

COURSE GRADING

- Weekly Module position paragraphs (PPs) = 22.5%
- Weekly Module discussion forum posts = 22.5%
- Miscellaneous Module discussion forum posts = 5%
- Oral history assignment = 20%
- Final research paper = 30%

WEEKLY MODULE ASSIGNMENTS

To be posted on Modules page of the course Canvas website over the course of the semester. Each week's module will contain four assignments:

1) Reading assignment: Some reading assignments will be a chapter or chapters from the textbook. Some reading assignments will be one or more articles. A link to the reading assignment will be contained within the module.

I am careful to limit the total page amount I assign you each week. Too often teachers overload students.

Tip: Skimming a reading is ok. I would rather have you do this than to skip it all together. A good method for skimming is reading the first couple of paragraphs, and then the first and last sentence of ensuing paragraphs, and then the last couple of paragraphs.

2) Position Paragraph (PP): You must write at least two sentences on the reading or readings assigned in that week's module.

PPs are quick and informal—just tell me a bit about your personal position on the reading assignment. This is your personal reaction or response to the reading assignment--how the material made you feel, or how it changed your thinking, or how you object to or agree with the what the authors are saying. PPs are not graded on content, only by whether or not you submitted one. This is meant to give you freedom to say whatever you want.

PPs are submitted by uploading them to the PP assignment box contained in each Weekly Module.

3) Video assignment: These will be either documentaries or lectures I record. A link to the video assignment is contained within the Weekly Modules. Again, I'm careful to limit the length of what you have to watch.

4) Discussion forum post: For each video, you must submit at least one comment in the Discussion forum for the Weekly Module. Your comment must be at least two sentences. A link to the Discussion forum is contained within the module.

I highly encourage you to respond to each other's posts or pose questions to each other. Engage each other; engage the material in the video assignment you are posting about. Raise issues. Share your experiences. Challenge yourself to look deeper and listen better. Speak up.

These forums are a poor replacement for the kind of discussions we can have in the classroom, but this is the situation during the pandemic. I cannot in good conscience require synchronous Zoom sessions, which would be better for discussion. It is not what people signed up for. Many people would not be taking classes at all (even if we were not in the midst of a pandemic) if it were not for the asynchronous format. So let's do our best to 'talk' to each other through these discussion forums. I will sometimes weigh in on these forums, to help facilitate and inform.

PLEASE NOTE!

It is essential you read the Announcements on the Canvas site throughout the semester, and to monitor your Canvas email.

DUE DATES

- 1) Weekly Modules* = Due two weeks from when they are posted. Due dates will be posted in the Module title.

Due two weeks from when they are posted. Due dates will be posted in the Module name (for example: 'Weekly Module 1 – Due February 6'). You must submit them by 11:59pm on the due date—assignment boxes will close to submissions at that time.

I sometimes adjust readings and videos to better fit where the class seems to be going, or if I come across a new compelling piece. So not all modules are published at the start of the semester.

- 2) Miscellaneous Modules* = Due two weeks from when they are posted. Due dates will be posted in the Module title.

Due two weeks from when they are posted. Due dates will be posted in the Module name (for example: 'Miscellaneous Module 1 – Due February 7'). You must submit them by 11:59pm on the due date—assignment boxes will close to submissions at that time.

- 3) Research Paper Topic* = Due March 1

You can submit your Research Paper Topic either by talking to me on the phone, emailing me, texting me, or by uploading it to the assignment box within the Research Paper Topic assignment box by 11:59pm. My approval is required.

- 3) Oral History Assignment* = Due March 15

By 11:59pm--assignment box will close to submissions at that time.

- 4) Final Research Paper* = May 11

By 11:59pm--assignment box will close to submissions at that time.

Academic Dishonesty

In the academic community, the high value placed on truth implies a corresponding intolerance of scholastic dishonesty. In cases involving academic dishonesty, determination of the grade and of the student's status in the course is left primarily to the discretion of the faculty member. In such cases, where the instructor determines that a student has demonstrated academic dishonesty, the student may receive a failing grade for the assignment and/or exam and may be reported to the Chief Student Services Officer or designee. The Student Code of Conduct (AP 5500) is available on the College of the Redwoods website. Additional information about the rights and responsibilities of students, Board policies, and administrative procedures is located in the College Catalog and on the College of the Redwoods website.
