Course Information

Semester & Year: Spring 2022

Course ID & Section #: PHIL-1-V2594

Instructor's name: Tim Bos

Day/Time of required (online) meetings: MW 12:15 – 1:40

Location: Online (Canvas)

Course units: 3

Instructor Contact Information

Office hours: By Appointment

Phone number: 510-325-0446

Email address: tim-bos@redwoods.edu

Catalog Description

A study of thinking and its qualities with a focus on effective decision making and practical reasoning skills. Students will practice evaluating arguments, gathering and analyzing information, and reasoning to justify a conclusion. The course examines the uses of language, formal and informal fallacies, argument forms, deductive and inductive logic, and methods for evaluating arguments.

Course Student Learning Outcomes

1. Analyze and evaluate complex arguments about philosophical, cultural, or aesthetic issues from a variety of oral and written sources.
2. Construct a logical, coherent argument with a justified conclusion.

Accessibility

College of the Redwoods is committed to making reasonable accommodations for qualified students with disabilities. If you have a disability or believe you might benefit from disability-related services and accommodations, please contact your instructor or Disability Services and Programs for Students (DSPS). Students may make requests for alternative media by contacting DSPS based on their campus location:

- Eureka: 707-476-4280, student services building, 1st floor
- Del Norte: 707-465-2324, main building near library
- Klamath-Trinity: 530-625-4821 Ext 103

If you are taking online classes DSPS will email approved accommodations for distance education classes to your instructor. In the case of face-to-face instruction, please present your written accommodation request to your instructor at least one week before the needed accommodation so that necessary arrangements can be made. Last minute arrangements or post-test adjustments usually cannot be accommodated.

Student Support

Good information and clear communication about your needs will help you be successful. Please let your instructor know about any specific challenges or technology limitations that might affect your participation in class. College of the Redwoods wants every student to be successful.

Evaluation & Grading Policy

In-class Work: 20%*

Online Quizzes: 20%**

Online Discussion Participation: 20%**

Midterm: 20%

Final: 20%

*We will sometimes do work during our online meetings. You will have to scan or take a picture of the work and turn it in on Canvas. You get a guaranteed 100% just for turning it in (i.e., mistakes don't matter when we're doing class work).

**The quizzes will be open-book and taken online at your own leisure. Each quiz will be up for a week. You can take a quiz a second time if desired, and the highest grade will automatically be recorded.

***Discussion participation will also get you a guaranteed 100%, provided you do the following each week:

- (1) Post a substantive answer to the discussion prompt (it has to be obvious that you read the assigned reading and that you really thought about the topic).
- (2) Post at least one thoughtful reply to a peer's post.
- (3) Reply to me if I respond to your post.
- (4) Complete (1) and (2) within a week of the Discussion prompt appearing on Canvas.

Please note: Late work will be assessed on a case-by-case basis.

Introduction to the Course

Required Textbook: The Power of Critical Thinking, 6th ed. (Lewis Vaughn)

Description of the Course: A Critical Thinking class is supposed to teach you a set of skills and strategies that maximize your chances of acquiring knowledge, and minimize your chances of acquiring false beliefs. A main theme in the course will be the idea of an inference. Whenever you come to a new conclusion on the basis of information, you are making an inference. You can make a correct inference, or an incorrect inference. Think of Critical Thinking as the study of inferences, where the goal, of course, is to get better at making good inferences and recognizing bad inferences. When you make good inferences, and avoid bad inferences, you have a higher chance of learning objective truths about the world, and you also minimize the risk of being tricked into believing false things. Another way of understanding Critical Thinking is to think of it as the study of proper reasoning. Human beings have the remarkable capacity to think logically about the world around them. We make observations with the use of our senses, and then we draw general conclusions about the nature of reality on the basis of those observations (i.e., we make “inferences”). But despite our ability to reason well, we can also reason poorly. Critical Thinking should help you reason well, as well as teach you how to spot bad reasoning. At the end of the course, the successful student should be able to demonstrate the following skills:

- (1) Distinguish between inductive and deductive reasoning.
- (2) Evaluate deductive arguments using both propositional logic (with truth-tables) and categorical logic (with Venn diagrams).
- (3) Differentiate between different types of inductive arguments and be able to evaluate each type.
- (4) Recognize basic fallacies (recognized patterns of faulty reasoning) and rhetorical ploys (nonarguments designed to convince).
- (5) Demonstrate an understanding of the methodology used in science to discover objective truths about the world.

Academic dishonesty

In the academic community, the high value placed on truth implies a corresponding intolerance of scholastic dishonesty. In cases involving academic dishonesty, determination of the grade and of the student's status in the course is left primarily to the discretion of the faculty member. In such cases, where the instructor determines that a student has demonstrated academic dishonesty, the student may receive a failing grade for the assignment and/or exam and may be reported to the Chief Student Services Officer or designee. The Student Code of Conduct (AP 5500) is available on the College of the Redwoods website. Additional information about the rights and responsibilities of students, Board policies, and administrative procedures is located in the College Catalog and on the College of the Redwoods website.

Disruptive behavior

Student behavior or speech that disrupts the instructional setting will not be tolerated. Disruptive conduct may include, but is not limited to: unwarranted interruptions; failure to adhere to instructor's directions; vulgar or obscene language; slurs or other forms of intimidation; and physically or verbally abusive behavior. In such cases where the instructor determines that a student has disrupted the educational process, a disruptive student may be temporarily removed from class. In addition, the student may be reported to the Chief Student Services Officer or designee. The Student Code of Conduct (AP 5500) is available on the College of the Redwoods website. Additional information about the rights and responsibilities of students, Board policies, and administrative procedures is located in the College Catalog and on the College of the Redwoods website.

Inclusive Language in the Classroom

College of the Redwoods aspires to create a learning environment in which all people feel comfortable in contributing their perspectives to classroom discussions. It therefore encourages instructors and students to use language that is inclusive and respectful.

Setting Your Preferred Name in Canvas

Students have the ability to have an alternate first name and pronouns to appear in Canvas. Contact Admissions & Records to request a change to your preferred first name and pronoun. Your Preferred Name will only be listed in Canvas. This does not change your legal name in our records. See the Student Information Update form.
