Catalog Description

An introduction to the discipline of sociology including major theories, concepts and methods. Topics include: sociological imagination, social structure and interaction, culture, social groups and organizations, and social institutions. Also includes inquiry into social inequalities such as race/class/gender/global stratification.

Course Student Learning Outcomes

1. Employ a sociological perspective to critically evaluate a social issue related to social identity, differentials of power and privilege, or multicultural relations.
2. Explain the relationship between socialization and culture.
3. Use sociological concepts to evaluate complex ideas.

Recommended Preparation

Students should ideally be eligible for placement in ENG 1A or its equivalent when taking this class.

Educational Accessibility & Support

College of the Redwoods is committed to providing reasonable accommodations for qualified students who could benefit from additional educational support and services. You may qualify if you have a physical, mental, sensory, or intellectual condition which causes you to struggle academically, including but not limited to:

- Mental health conditions such as depression, anxiety, PTSD, bipolar disorder, and ADHD
- Common ailments such as arthritis, asthma, diabetes, autoimmune disorders, and diseases
- Temporary impairments such as a broken bone, recovery from significant surgery, or a pregnancy-related disability
- A learning disability (e.g., dyslexia, reading comprehension), intellectual disability, autism, or acquired brain injury
- Vision, hearing, or mobility challenges

Available services include extended test time, quiet testing environments, tutoring, counseling and advising, alternate formats of materials (e.g., audio books, E-texts), assistive technology, on-campus transportation, and more. If you believe you might benefit from disability- or health-related services and accommodations, please contact Disability Services and Programs for Students \(DSPS\). If you are unsure whether you qualify, please contact DSPS for a consultation: dsps@redwoods.edu.

- Eureka: 707-476-4280, Student Services Building, 1st floor

- Del Norte: 707-465-2324, Main Building, near the library
- Klamath-Trinity: 707-476-4280

Receiving Accommodations. Please ensure your written accommodation request is delivered to me at least one week before the first scored assignment so that necessary arrangements can be made. Last-minute arrangements or post-test adjustments cannot usually be accommodated except under extenuating circumstances.

Required Materials

Required Textbook: Essentials of Sociology, 8th edition, by Giddens, Duneier, Appelbaum, and Carr. ISBN: 978-0-393-53791-8. You can purchase a semester-long subscription of the electronic version of the book for around $40. A hard copy will cost you more, but you get to keep it. Either way, your purchase also gets you access to the textbook publisher's online adaptive learning program, which is a great tool for studying. I won't require that you use this learning tool for class, but I recommend it nonetheless. If your budget is tight, there is a copy of Essentials 7th edition on reserve at the library to get you through in a pinch. However, we will be referring to material in the 8th edition in class.

Other Materials: None

Canvas Course Website

All class activity takes place online, on Canvas. Below are helpful links to get you logged in and working.

- Log into Canvas at My CR Portal. For help logging in to Canvas, visit My CR Portal.
- For help with Canvas once you're logged in, click on the Help icon on the left menu.
- For tech help, email its@redwoods.edu or call 707-476-4160
- Canvas online orientation workshop: Canvas Student Orientation Course \(instructure.com\)

Setting Your Preferred Name in Canvas

Students have the ability to have an alternate first name in Canvas. Contact Admissions & Records to request a change to your preferred first name. Your Preferred Name will only be listed in Canvas. This does not change your legal name in our records. See the Student Information Update form.

Canvas Account Profile

All students in this class must select a Canvas profile picture for their account. Your picture must meet the standards of netiquette, as defined below. A photo, avatar, gravatar, or something else representing you will work. It cannot be a monochrome (single color) image, your initials, or violate my course policies. Students must choose a profile picture and make their introduction to the class by Thursday of Week 1 to stay enrolled in the course.

Proctored Exams

All exams for this class are taken online. However, I reserve the right to require proctored (in person) exams as needed. I will notify you well in advance of any examination dates.

Course Policies & Procedures

Semester Overview

The semester is 15 weeks long, followed by finals week (Week 16), during which time you'll take your comprehensive, written final exam. We cover approximately one chapter per week.

Evaluation and Grading

Participation (30%)

The online class discussion forum makes up an important part of each week's activity. These are asynchronous, but there are deadlines during the week you must meet. Because discussions are focused conversations held during a specific time period, I don't allow make ups, but I will drop your three lowest scores in this category. Use these "freebies" wisely, as you may need them later in the term when the semester can get busy.

Quizzes (30%)

One quiz per chapter. Chapter quizzes test how well you understand the chapter material after engaging the reading, lecture, discussion, and other activities. Each quiz consists of approximately 20 multiple-choice, matching, or true/false questions worth one point each. You have 40 minutes to attempt a quiz and you have two attempts per quiz. Canvas keeps the score of your most recent attempt. Each chapter quiz opens (becomes available to take) when the chapter module opens and remain open for the duration of the semester, but you must attempt a chapter's quiz at least once before Canvas lets you go to the next chapter module.

Writing Assignments (20%)

Writing assignments involved application of the major ideas for each part of the course. There are three of these, due the end of Weeks 5, 10, and 15, respectively.

Final Exam (20%)

At the end of the semester (during Week 16) you will take a Final Exam. The exam consists of three questions, one for each of the major learning outcomes of the course (page one, above). Answers are in short essay format (approximately 75-150 words for each question). You will have two hours to complete the exam (disability accommodations will be factored in). You get one attempt. The link to the exam becomes available Monday, May 6 at 2:45 p.m. and stays open until Tuesday, May 7 at 2:45 p.m. You must take the exam (make your two-hour attempt) during this time period (the 'exam window').

NOTE: It is mandatory that you take your final exam. Students who don't take the final exam get an automatic D in the course (or lower, depending on your performance), regardless of how well you do in the rest of the grading categories.

Grades

The course website will show your current score in the class as a percentage. I use the following scale in determining your final letter grade:

A = 93% and above	A- = 90-92%	B+ = 87-89%
B = 83-86%	B- = 80-82	C+ = 77-79%
C = 70-76%	D = 50-69%	F = 49% and below

An Incomplete (I) is given at your instructor's discretion and will only be granted to those students who continue to participate in class, have completed all prior work, and who have made arrangements with me by the end of the 15th week. This is a rare privilege and is not granted lightly.

Academic Integrity: Your Commitment to the Truth

In the academic community, we place a high value on truth. We set high expectations for ourselves and for our students. Students new to college are sometimes uncertain of what is acceptable and what is not.

Academic integrity essentially means submitting your own work on all assignments, unless specifically told to collaborate with others. This means NO essays for hire, NO machine/artificial intelligence bots writing your stuff for you, NO having a friend write for you, NO copy and paste from the internet or some other source (this includes copying, pasting, and then modifying a word or two), NO getting help or giving help on a quiz, NO sharing quiz questions with others, NO copying someone else's discussion post, etc. All of this violates the principle of academic integrity, but more importantly, it deprives you of the opportunity to learn and to develop your own critical thinking skills.

Plagiarism

One of the biggest problems in an online environment is plagiarism, which is using someone else's ideas, data, or text without giving proper credit to the source of those ideas, data, or text. In this class, plagiarism violates the principle of academic integrity. Here are some guidelines for how to avoid plagiarism.

- You generally don't need to cite your source in a discussion, reflection, or short essay. However, if you use original ideas from outside of class, you should cite the source.
- If you use data or statistics from any source, including your textbook, you need to make a citation.
- If it is firsthand knowledge (gained from your own experience) you don't need a citation, but you should at least identify it as such.

- If you use text from any source, you are required to enclose that text in quotation marks and make a citation.

You may be thinking, "Okay, but how do I make a citation?" For those rare times you make a citation in a discussion, reflection, or short essay, you can simply refer to the source by name and provide either a link or publication info (author names, year of publication, where it was published). On a formal research paper or assignment where you rely on sources outside of class, use "in-text" citations (also known as parenthetical citations). Here are some examples using the manuscript style of the American Psychological Association (APA).

Smith (2002) found that students appreciate having clear guidelines on academic integrity.

Or,

In a recent survey, students reported appreciating having clear guidelines on academic integrity (Smith, 2002).

Or,

Researchers found that "seventy five percent of student surveyed appreciated having clear guidelines on academic integrity" (Smith, 2002, p. 194).

Notice the author's last name and the year. If the name is part of the sentence, don't enclose it within the parentheses. If the name is not part of the sentence, then enclose it within the parentheses. And in the last one, a direct quote is made. The quotation marks enclose the text that was copied from the source and the citation includes the page number of the quote.

Once you've made a citation, the final piece on a formal paper is the reference. Here's an example of a reference using APA style. Notice how it includes all of the catalog information you would need to find the journal article where this information was originally published.

Smith, J. (2002). Student attitudes toward academic integrity. Journal of Higher Education (36)2: 191-199.

APA style dictates that references are listed in a separate section at the end of a research or analytical report. For more on APA style, see the term paper module on the course website.

The Rules on Plagiarism

With all that said, I treat plagiarism as violation of academic integrity and I consider it the student's responsibility to know what it is and how to avoid it. For a quick guide on plagiarism, the Online Writing Lab at Purdue University is a great resource. For now, here are some examples of plagiarism.

- Referring to information and ideas from someone or somewhere else without properly citing the source
- Copying and pasting someone else's text without the use of quotation marks
- Copying and pasting and then modifying the text a bit without using quotation marks
- Relying on excessive quotations or long quotations to fill in your paper or other assignments
- Using ChatGPT or some other AI system to write your paper
- Purchasing an essay, hiring a ghost writer, or simply having a friend write your paper
- Submitting someone else's paper
- Submitting a paper you turned in on an another assignment in this class or for another class

Policy on the Use of Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning Generators in Your Work

I understand that AI is out of the box and there's no going back. And I get the appeal of having it do your work for you. However, that isn't learning what you're supposed to learn, it's learning to game the system. Would you want to rely on a doctor who relied on someone who cheated their way through med school to treat you? So why wouldn't the same principle apply to any other professional, including you?

Because of these concerns, and fully recognizing that AI is a useful tool, my policy is that if you use generative AI (e.g., ChatGPT), you must cite it as a source. And if you use any of the actual text generated by AI, you must enclose that text in quotation marks and make a citation.

Importantly, this means that your use of AI should be limited to the same way you'd use any other source: as a reference, not as a substitute author. In any academic assignment, quotations in general should be kept to a minimum. This implies that the vast majority of your work will be written by you, and not generative AI.

The Not So Nice Part

So, now that you all know, please hear me when I say that students who are caught collaborating on an assignment without being explicitly told to do so, or who plagiarize, or commit any other form of academic dishonesty as defined by this policy, will forfeit all credit for that assignment.

In addition to plagiarism, academic dishonesty includes but is not limited to cheating, collusion, complicity, abuse of resources, computer misuse, fabrication or falsification, unpermitted multiple submissions, and bearing false witness.

For more information on academic integrity, the Student Code of Conduct (AP 5500) is available on the College of the Redwoods website. Additional reading about the rights and responsibilities of students, Board policies, and administrative procedures is located in the College Catalog and on the College of the Redwoods website.

Disruptive Behavior

Student behavior or speech that disrupts the instructional setting will not be tolerated. Disruptive conduct may include, but is not limited to: unwarranted interruptions; failure to adhere to instructor's directions; vulgar or obscene language; slurs or other forms of intimidation; and physically or verbally abusive behavior. In such cases where the instructor determines that a student has disrupted the educational process, a disruptive student may be temporarily removed from class. In addition, the student may be reported to the Chief Student Services Officer or designee.

Classroom Etiquette

Interaction in the classroom requires paying attention to the way we can potentially affect others. Peaceful, logical, evidence-based, constructive, critical thinking and inquiry is encouraged. Aggressive, destructive criticism is not. Just like you wouldn't shout in someone's face in class, avoid communication that is corrosive and divisive.

Policy on Hate-Based Communication

In this class I have a zero-tolerance policy when it comes to individuals, groups, or organizations professing ideologies that target, intimidate, and/or dehumanize individuals or groups based on their perceived race, color, ethnicity, nationality, national origin, citizenship, language, religion, age, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, body size, marital status, genetic status, veteran status, assault and trauma survivor status, and/or physical ability. Such expression is antithetical to the spirit of the academy and to the mission of the college. Individual actions that express hatred, contempt, or degradation of others will not be tolerated. Any and all speech, gestures, adornment, emblems, codes, insignias, signs, symbols, slogans, flags, propaganda, paraphernalia, or other memes that express or represent hate-based ideology, or discrimination against protected classes, or otherwise signifies identification with, sympathy for, affiliation with, or membership in a hate group are strictly prohibited from this virtual classroom. Any violation of this policy will result in the student(s) having classroom privileges suspended until compliance is assured.

Inclusive Language in the Classroom

College of the Redwoods aspires to create a learning environment in which all people feel comfortable in contributing their perspectives to classroom discussions. It therefore encourages instructors and students to use language that is inclusive and respectful. Please let me and other students know if you have preferences for how you are addressed.

Setting Your Preferred Name in Canvas

Students have the ability to have an alternate first name and pronouns to appear in Canvas. Contact Admissions & Records to request a change to your preferred first name and pronoun. Your Preferred Name will only be listed in Canvas. This does not change your legal name in our records. See the Student Information Update form.

Student Support Services

Good information and clear communication about your needs will help you be successful. Please let your instructor know about any specific challenges or technology limitations that might affect your participation in class. College of the Redwoods wants every student to be successful.
